Employment and pay practices are free from the effects of conscious and unconscious bias and assumptions based on gender.

Issue statement
Bias and discrimination occur at every point throughout the employment cycle. Conscious and unconscious bias impacts negatively on women’s employment, pay and progression opportunities. These negative impacts are compounded when gender is combined with other factors.

This means
- Decision makers recognise and act to remove the impacts of conscious and unconscious bias.
- Employees, unions and agencies actively raise awareness among all staff of gender stereotyping and conscious and unconscious bias.
- Employees, unions and agencies jointly evaluate policies and practices to identify where and when gender bias and discrimination can occur.
- Agencies take action to prevent gender bias and discrimination before it occurs.
- Employees, unions and agencies pay particular attention to the compounding impacts of gender combined with other factors.
- Agencies value gender diversity and promote active protection from discrimination.
- Leaders and decision makers develop strong relationships with Māori women to reduce opportunities for bias and discrimination to occur.

PRINCIPLE: FREEDOM FROM BIAS and DISCRIMINATION

Employment and pay practices are transparent and easily accessible.

Issue statement
Transparency and accessibility is essential to the sustainable elimination of gender pay gaps. Maintaining transparent employment and pay practices is likely to prevent gender pay gaps from occurring and attract and retain a diverse and committed workforce.

This means
- Pay rates and systems are transparent and easily accessible.
- Gender pay gap information is audited and published annually.
- Gender pay gap information is disaggregated to understand the compounding impacts when gender is combined with other factors.
- Agencies publish plans for addressing gender pay gaps, ensuring that they are readily available to all employees and their unions.
- Where collective agreements are negotiated, they include pay rates and pay systems that are transparent and accessible to all.
- Agencies identify where insecure work arrangements contribute to workplace gender inequalities.

PRINCIPLE: TRANSPARENCY and ACCESSIBILITY

Men and women have different patterns of participation in the paid workforce, primarily because women spend a greater proportion of their time on unpaid and/or caring work. As a result women are disadvantaged in areas such as pay progression, security of employment and retirement income. When women’s skills and experience are not recognised, they are underutilised and undervalued in the workforce.

Issue statement
Inequities in the labour market are caused by deeply embedded views, values and practices. Change requires genuine engagement and sustainable solutions. These principles are a living and practical set of guidelines for use by all state sector agencies. They stand alongside the Gender Pay Principles Working Group was established. It was made up of unions, state sector agencies and the Commission, and through a collaborative process it agreed the principles set out here.

Approach
Inequalities in the labour market are caused by deeply embedded views, values and practices. Change requires genuine engagement and sustainable solutions. These principles are a living and practical set of guidelines for use by all state sector agencies. They stand alongside the Gender Pay Principles Working Group was established. It was made up of unions, state sector agencies and the Commission, and through a collaborative process it agreed the principles set out here.

Application
These principles recognise the employment cycle begins before an employee takes up their job. It includes recruitment, remuneration, training and development, career progression, leave, flexible, and part-time arrangements. It also includes periods in and out of the workforce. By addressing policies, decision-making and practice at each point, agencies can make a real difference.

Influence
While the focus of the Principles has been the core state sector, they are relevant to other sectors. The Working Group is confident that the Principles have broader application.

PRINCIPLE: RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN PAID and UNPAID WORK

The Principles have broader application.

History
Working environments in the state sector are free from gender based inequalities. All employees are able to achieve their full potential regardless of their gender, and gender pay gaps are eliminated.

Issue statement
While the focus of the Principles has been the core state sector, they are relevant to other sectors. The Working Group is confident that the Principles have broader application.

Aim
GENDER PAY PRINCIPLES

Employment and pay practices are free from the effects of conscious and unconscious bias and assumptions based on gender.

Issue statement
Bias and discrimination occur at every point throughout the employment cycle. Conscious and unconscious bias impacts negatively on women's employment, pay and progression opportunities. These negative impacts are compounded when gender is combined with other factors.

This means
- Decision makers recognise and act to remove the impacts of conscious and unconscious bias.
- Employees, unions and agencies actively raise awareness amongst all staff of gender stereotyping and conscious and unconscious bias.
- Employees, unions and agencies jointly evaluate policies and practices to identify where and when gender bias and discrimination can occur.
- Agencies take action to prevent gender bias and discrimination before it occurs.
- Employees, unions and agencies pay particular attention to the compounding impacts of gender combined with other factors.
- Agencies value gender diversity and promote active protection from discrimination.
- Leaders and decision makers develop strong relationships with Māori women to reduce opportunities for bias and discrimination to occur.

PRINCIPLE: FREEDOM FROM BIAS and DISCRIMINATION

Employment and pay practices are transparent and easily accessible.

Issue statement
Transparency and accessibility is essential to the sustainable elimination of gender pay gaps. Maintaining transparent employment and pay practices is likely to prevent gender pay gaps from occurring and attract and retain a diverse and committed workforce.

This means
- Pay rates and systems are transparent and easily accessible.
- Gender pay gap information is audited and published annually.
- Gender pay gap information is disaggregated to understand the compounding impacts when gender is combined with other factors.
- Agencies publish plans for addressing gender pay gaps, ensuring that they are readily available to all employees and their unions.
- Where collective agreements are negotiated, they include pay rates and pay systems that are transparent and accessible to all.
- Agencies identify where insecure work arrangements contribute to workplace gender inequalities.

PRINCIPLE: TRANSPARENCY and ACCESSIBILITY

Men and women have different patterns of participation in the paid workforce, primarily because women spend a greater proportion of their time on unpaid and/or caring work. As a result women are disadvantaged in areas such as pay progression, security of employment and retirement income. When women’s skills and experience are not recognised, they are underutilised and undervalued in the workforce.

Issue statement
Inequities in the labour market are caused by deeply embedded views, values and practices. Change requires genuine engagement and sustainable solutions. These principles are a living and practical set of guidelines for use by all state sector agencies. They stand alongside the Gender Pay Principles Working Group was established. It was made up of unions, state sector agencies and the Commission, and through a collaborative process it agreed the principles set out here.

Approach
Inequalities in the labour market are caused by deeply embedded views, values and practices. Change requires genuine engagement and sustainable solutions. These principles are a living and practical set of guidelines for use by all state sector agencies. They stand alongside the Gender Pay Principles Working Group was established. It was made up of unions, state sector agencies and the Commission, and through a collaborative process it agreed the principles set out here.

Application
These principles recognise the employment cycle begins before an employee takes up their job. It includes recruitment, remuneration, training and development, career progression, leave, flexible, and part-time arrangements. It also includes periods in and out of the workforce. By addressing policies, decision-making and practice at each point, agencies can make a real difference.

Influence
While the focus of the Principles has been the core state sector, they are relevant to other sectors. The Working Group is confident that the Principles have broader application.

PRINCIPLE: RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN PAID and UNPAID WORK

The Principles have broader application.
Gender Pay Principles

SUSTAINABILITY Principle

Employees, their unions and agencies work collaboratively to achieve mutually agreed outcomes.

Issue statement
Remedying gender inequities and closing gender pay gaps requires continuous organisational commitment and collective engagement to achieve sustainable systemic change. Integration of the principles of the Te Tiriti o Waitangi and addressing the needs and perspectives of Māori women is essential.

This means
• Senior leaders make an ongoing commitment to eliminate gender inequities and allocate budget and resources accordingly
• Employees, unions and agencies jointly set explicit goals and timelines to eliminate gender pay gaps
• Agencies collect, analyse and monitor data to identify all the factors that contribute to their gender pay gaps
• Interventions and solutions are informed by data and best practice
• Employees, unions and agencies jointly monitor, evaluate and adapt plans to ensure equitable outcomes are sustained
• The application of the Te Tiriti o Waitangi and its principles is adapted to new and changing circumstances
• Agencies undertake specific planning and resourcing to achieve equitable outcomes for Māori women
• Collective and/or individual agreements are key mechanisms for ensuring that changes are sustained
• Agencies consider how these Principles apply to all employment arrangements, including contractors.

PARTICIPATION and ENGAGEMENT Principle

Employees, their unions and agencies work collaboratively to achieve mutually agreed outcomes.

Issue statement
Employees, their unions and agencies have a shared interest in achieving sustainable outcomes and cultural change. Effective participation and engagement in a high-trust environment promotes organisational performance. Inclusive processes support social, cultural, environmental and spiritual wellbeing. Collective ownership of solutions is achieved through effective communications and genuine input.

This means
• Genuine input is sought from the design phase and throughout the process
• Employees, unions and agencies jointly develop, implement, monitor and evaluate plans to address gender pay gaps
• Employees, unions and agencies use collaborative processes, including collective bargaining, to agree and implement plans
• Employees can see their experiences and voices reflected in decision-making
• Agencies actively engage with women in a way that is inclusive and recognises their diversity and different perspectives
• Leaders and decision makers develop strong relationships with Māori women to ensure their needs and perspectives are addressed
• Where collective agreements are negotiated they include agreed mechanisms to implement these Principles.

When agencies, employees, and their unions work together and feel shared ownership of actions and progress, they achieve the best and most sustainable outcomes.

The Gender Pay Principles Working Group is developing guidance that agencies and unions can use to give effect to the Principles. This work will continue and be published so employers and employees can use it.

You can find an online version of the Gender Pay Principles and further information here:

www.women.govt.nz/genderpayprinciples